Impact stories

Benefits utilization

Customer

$30 billion national financial institution

Problem

This financial services leader works hard to provide employees the benefits they need to thrive personally and professionally. But the company had only passive benefits communications, leaving employees unaware of the full scope of available resources. The company used several different intranet tools to share information, but lacked a single point of access to its programs. As a result, benefits utilization was disappointingly low.

Goals

- Centralized benefits access
  - Increased benefits awareness and utilization

Our approach

Evive's digital hub and data-driven, personalized messaging give employees easy access to their benefits and guide them to the care they need the most. This benefits hub, MyEvive, features all of the company's benefits and programs in a single location, with helpful resources and a user-friendly interface that makes it easy for employees and their spouses to access, understand, and use their benefits.
